Both the weight and dimensions are comparable to those of a four-speed automatic unit, and better than those of five-speed transverse automatic transmissions with the same torque capacity. The weight of the AM6 gearbox has thus been kept down to 92 kg, a value comparable, for example, with that of the previous four-speed 4HP20-type gearbox. The new-generation common rail direct injection system on the new HDi 138 is supplied by Siemens and the engine features a second-generation injection system and a variable-geometry turbocharger. When looking at mpg for two cars, always check the figures were measured under the same test system. The AM6 gearbox offers a choice of two management modes for enhanced driving pleasure-automatic auto-adaptive mode for stress-free driving, and a more active sequential control mode. The instrument cluster displays the programme selected (auto-adaptive, sport or snow) or the gear used (sequential mode). The system also delivers injection pressure of 1,600 bars. This engine makes full use of the potential offered by the common-rail system with its multiple injection technology and the enhanced management of fuel injection into each cylinder, providing four injections per engine cycle. * Two main injections to reduce nitrogen oxide emissions at source. For increased safety, the gearbox features a "shift lock" function to prevent the driver shifting from the Parking (P) position without also applying the brakes. The system is controlled by just five friction components, managed by a compact integrated control unit. As a result, this gearbox is lighter and more compact than any other six-speed gearbox to date. The overboost function increases maximum torque to 340 Nm at 2,000 rpm at full engine load, during, for example, acceleration. The Diesel Particulate Filter System (DPFS) version meets the Euro IV emission standard. This design optimises the car's acceleration performance. The sixth gear ratio has been chosen to lower fuel consumption and also noise, which is already very low. "The 2.0 litre HDi 138 16 valve engine turbo diesel engine develops 100 kW CEE (138 bhp DIN, hence the name) and a maximum torque of 320 Nm at 2,000 rpm. Add the new engine and gearbox and the C5 also sews up economy and performance, making the C5 HDi Wagon the car against which all others must be judged." explains Miles Williams, General Manager for Citroen Australia. "The Citroen C5 was already nothing short of a technical tour de force and this new drivetrain does nothing less than extend its advantage over all its rivals, but this is not technology for technology's sake. The new WLTP test gives figures closer to a car's "true mpg" than the pre-2017 NEDC test, which tended to overstate mpg compared to what real-world drivers would get. Comparing one car's WLTP figure with another's NEDC figure will not tell you which has the better mpg. The first ratio is shortened in order to provide a high-speed take-off. Fuel consumption Pre-2017 test standard Explanation Official fuel economy tests explained An improved official test for car fuel economy was introduced in September 2017. Like the HDi 110 fitted to the acclaimed Citroen C4 HDi, it is designed to manage up to six different injections programmes. What ever the load, the C5 not only stays level, it also has full suspension travel; the ride is not affected, nor is the handling or the road holding." "The C5's unique suspension means that the car can be raised on rough roads, the tail can be raised and lowered to ease loading injections improve regeneration efficiency. Developed with Aisin AW, new six speed automatic gearbox for the Citroen C5 HDi has been designed specifically to combine a six-speed transmission with a high-torque engine placed transversely installed in the engine bay. This gearbox uses the gear ratio combinations of two epicyclic gear trains, one single and one double. The C5 HDi has a host of safety features, including ESP, ABS, automatic lights and wipers, and a crash safety standard that set a new benchmark in the Euro-NCAP safety tests. Take the suspension for example.
